The graph shows the changes of rural population in poverty and poverty headcount ratio from 2012 to 2020.

First, the number of rural population in poverty dropped from nearly 100 million in 2012 to about 5 million in 2019, and in 2020 it was completely cleared. Second, the ratio of the poor in rural population decreased drastically from about 80% in 2012 to about 3% in 2019 and to zero in 2020. Therefore, we can find out a great change of the number of rural poor people and its proportion in rural population.

There are several reasons and corresponding evidence behind the trend. First of all, China's great economic development contributes to help people get out of poverty. This is because economic development will inevitably bring more employment opportunities, as a result, a large number of rural poor people have got rid of poverty through hard work. In addition, Chinese government has done its utmost on poverty alleviation. For example, local governments manage to solve the root causes of poverty by implementing policies such as poverty alleviation through education and industry, and have made great achievements in short period. As a result, China has completely eliminated poverty in less than a decade from 2012 to 2020, which is a remarkable achievement.
